

June 30, 2007

To Whom It May Concern:

I first met Brandon Coursey when he came to do an estimate to paint the outside of my house during his employment with College Works Painting. In a world where many people try to achieve things by whatever means they can employ, what immediately struck me about Brandon were his honesty and his genuine desire to do the best job possible. His goal, which took precedence above all other things, was to ensure that I, the customer, was satisfied.

As I began working with Brandon, what also became evident were his extraordinary communication skills. I was never left wondering what the status of the job was, nor what information was required of me to ensure that the job could continue. I was also extremely impressed with how conscientious Brandon is, not only with the quality of work that he does, but also in his respect for other people and their time. Brandon always follows through with the things he says he will do, and arrives or calls on the days and at the times that he designates.

Toward the end of the job, there were a few remaining things to be done, and rather than calling the painter, which could have resulted in several days of waiting prior to things being finished, Brandon stayed until it was dark, ensuring that every detail was attended to. His work ethic is unmatched.

It was a great pleasure meeting and working with Brandon. I highly recommend him, and would work with him again without hesitation.

Sincerely,

Phil Kibitt