

To whom it may concern,

This past year I was recommended to College Works Painting by my brother and district manager Erik Murray. Desperate to make some good money and very curious to learn how to run my own business I decided to become an intern. Through out the internship I was constantly pushing my comfort zone to learn new things every day. After ending my business at the end of summer, I not only made more money that I have ever had, but was also in awe of how much I had learned in such a short period of time. College Works has not only shaped my business skills, but also turned me into a more professional mature adult. If you are willing to work hard, constantly persevere to your best and never say no then College Works Painting is for you!
