

To whom it may concern:

This letter is in reference to my college works internship experience as a branch manager for the 2008 season.

I was first given this opportunity to participate in the college works intern program as a junior and it has changed my life in the most positive way. Going into the program I was unsure of what to expect, but one thing that I was promised was personal growth. I knew what I wanted to do in life; however I didn't know what steps to take in order to achieve what I really wanted. This program allowed me to develop the skills that I need to be successful in whatever I do, and the confidence to actually go out and do it. In this day and age, real experience is extremely important and given the opportunity as a college student to run my own business was an opportunity I could not pass up. It brought about qualities in myself I thought I never possessed, and now those qualities make me who I am today.

Matt Jameson
California State University, Fullerton
Business Marketing
Member of the Delta Chi Fraternity