

To whom it may concern,

Although I found the internship to be challenging, it was very rewarding at the same time. The fact that I could accomplish so many things in a day and still have leisure time with my friends was amazing. I learned so many new things. One of the biggest skills I gained this spring was proper time management. While doing the internship this passed year, I was able to actively participate in my fraternity and stay on top of my engineering course load. Overall, the internship helped me grow as a person. I'll be back next year as an executive manager to hopefully gain some more skills.
