To Whomever It May Concern,

I am writing this letter in thanks to the College Works Painting internship opportunity that I was a part of this past summer. I was recruited to this program in the fall of 2006 and was hired as one of their branch operators for the Spring and Summer of 2007. After being a part of this program I would strongly recommend it to every college student looking to jumpstart their careers and prepare for their futures.

College Works provided me with a very challenging and very rewarding opportunity to run my own business over the summer while focusing on experience in a variety of business fields as well as personal development. As an intern, I was in charge of my own schedule, my own clients, my own employees, and my own profitability. Though my experience as a College Works Intern was very challenging, I learnt and received real world experience in marketing, sales, customer relations, and management. I also greatly improved on my communication, leadership, and organizational skills, as well as gaining confidence as a business person.

After my summer as a College Works intern, I can now put on my resume that I hired, trained and managed 8 employees, and achieved revenues of over $60,000. With all the experience I gained through the summer and these two achievements, I have built a highly extensive resume as a 19 year old college student.

This program appealed to me originally because of the compensation involved. College Works provides the opportunity to manage as large as a business as you can, giving you no limit to the profits you can earn over one summer. As a first year intern, I earned over $14,000, and plan to stay with the program for a second year and earn twice that amount.

Due to my amazing experience with this company, I wish to spread the word and offer this opportunity to other college students who can take advantage of such a great program. Thanks College Works!

Sincerely,

Daniel Champagne
