

I learned a lot from the internship last summer. I know that I didn't do as well as some. A few things that I picked up from the internship is to do a little background check in the area that I was in. I thought it would be a good area, but if I would have talked to other painters and paint suppliers, they probably would have told me to go further south. Dustin and Jared advised me to do so early in the season and I wish I would have listened. But I learned important aspects about managing your own company and the hard work that is involved in it. It's a lot more than just going out and painting houses. All in all it was a great experience for me, even though I accumulated a bigger debt at first than most interns. Sometimes I have to learn the hard way. All I have to say is that I worked hard for every penny I earned and whoever is interested in this internship better be ready to work hard and put a lot of time into it in exchange for a fun and rewarding summer.

thanks for a great experience.
